Protest held after police party kills septuagenerian man, nephew

By Our Correspondent

SUKKUR: A large number of people belonging to the Junejo community and their supporters placed the bodies of an elderly man and his young nephew at the Sukkur-Larkana Road near Mirzapur in Shikarpur, in protest against their killing at the hands of police.

The protesters staged a demonstration, suspending vehicular movement on both sides of the road.

A protester, Mohammad Mithal Junejo (a retired army personnel), told reporters that Shikarpur police had killed his innocent 75-year-old father Dodo Junejo and young cousin Abdul Ghafoor Junejo.

He said police initially claimed that they had killed Mithal Junejo in an encounter, but "I am alive talking to you (media persons)".

He alleged that Shikarpur police had killed an innocent elderly man and a student of first year who had no criminal record.

Mithal claimed that his father was a respectable man of the area, and always made efforts for the settlement of feuds between different warring parties in Shikarpur.

He added that his father always went to the warring parties, carrying the Holy Quran on his head to persuade them to settle their disputes.

He claimed that police took away his father and cousin at around 7:30am from their home and killed them somewhere else.

Mithal said that an enquiry should be conducted into police's claim that his father and cousin were criminals. He added that the people of different clans could verify that his father and cousin were not criminals; they were innocent and respectable citizens.

Meanwhile, Ali Gul Junejo, another army personal, said police had taken away his uncle and cousin in front of him alive from home and killed them.

Meanwhile, Shikarpur police on Sunday claimed to have gunned down three notorious dacoits and wounded more than a dozen others in an attack on criminals who had gathered around a bonfire (Machh Kachehri) at the residence of notorious dacoit Kashmir Jatoi in the riverine area of Bagarji in Sukkur on Sunday. The police said the raid was conducted with the help of a drone.

12-member medical board examines victim of Sanghar 'sexual assault'

By Our Staff Correspondent

HYDERABAD: A 12-member medical board has examined a young girl who was admitted to the Liaquat University Hospital (LUH) for reconstructive surgery after she was subjected to a brutal attack in the Chhotiarioon (also known as Chhotiari) area of Sanghar district on Jan 21.

She had suffered grave injuries on different parts of her face and is now under treatment at LUH's Plastic & Burns Ward.

The medical board comprises professors, associate professors and assistant professors of the Liaquat University of Medical & Health Sciences (LUMHS), Jamshoro. They belong to the faculties of gynaecology, ophthalmology, surgery, oral & maxillofacial surgery, cardiothoracic surgery, medicine, radiology and ENT.

The LUMHS registrar had formed the board on the request of the LUH medical superintendent.

The Sindh inspector general of police has constituted a six-member committee headed by the Mirpurkhas DIG to conduct a fair and transparent investigation into the incident, whose FIR (No. 3/26) was lodged at the Sanghar police station by the victim.

Other members of the committee are SSPs of Hyderabad and Sanghar, DSP Legal Zikria Korejo, SIP Abdul Hakeem Kumbhar and Sanghar CIA's prosecution inspector Zahid Kamboh.

The committee is required to submit a comprehensive weekly report for perusal of the IGP. According to Sanghar SSP Abid Baloch, three different statements were made by the girl and her parents. One statement claimed the injuries to her were inflicted by 'some thieves'; a second attributed them to a road accident; and a third statement suggested them to have been caused during sexual assault and violence.

"The FIR was lodged on the girl's complaint after she recorded her video statement," the SSP told Dawn over phone on Sunday. He said that her two medico-legal examinations for alleged sexual assault and violence were conducted at the Sanghar District Headquarters Hospital in view of her parent's statements.

The girl had marks of injuries on her cheek, lips and forehead and she received stitches. She told police that these injuries were inflicted with a blade by a man, Wazir Rajar. However, the opinion in 'sexual assault' claim has been reserved for a DNA analysis. Samples were sent to LUMHS Molecular Biology Laboratory for DNA Testing. The lab received the samples on Friday.

The girl's parents told media personnel that she had been subjected to sexual assault by Wazir Rajar, who also later gave her some intoxicant.

Shazia Marri wants severe punishment to culprit

Pakistan Peoples Party-Parliamentarians (PPP-P) Information Secretary Shazia Marri has demanded severe punishment to the culprit.

Speaking to journalists at the LUH after inquiring about the health of the victim girl on Sunday, she said the injuries on her face would heal up, but those inflicted on her soul could not. "She is in complete trauma; I told her: you are innocent and you are not at fault; and don't lose hope," Ms Marri said.

She added that her confidence was shaken; anyone having children could feel her pain.

She pledged that she would strive to get the culprit punished through legal process. She urged the judiciary to hand down severe punishment to the guilty in this case.

Ms Marri could not confirm whether the victim was subjected to criminal assault as well.

"She informed me that her family didn't speak because they were scared," she said.

The PPP leader praised those who stood with the victim and ensured her transportation to the LUH. She especially lauded efforts by doctors at the Sanghar hospital.

She said that only female staff was serving her at the LUH as no male was being allowed to access her, barring her immediate family.

She said the girl would be taken care of even after she was discharged from the hospital.

She promised every possible assistance by the government in her case. She said she would speak to the CM and IGP to make sure that the investigation in the case remained on the right track.

She said she would also speak to the Sanghar SSP to ensure that her FIR was properly registered and there was no lacuna in it.

Folk artists, musicians and singers enthral audience at Sindhology institute programme

By Qurban Ali Khushik

DADU: Sindh University's Institute of Sindhology organised a graceful and vibrant cultural event on its premises on Friday night under the title 'Sughar Kachehri'. The programme also featured masterly playing of traditional musical instruments, singing of folk songs and other performing art presentations.

The ceremony was presided over by the SU Vice Chancellor Professor Dr Fateh Mohammad Marri.

A large number of scholars, writers, poets and lovers of fine arts, besides the university's faculty members, students and employees, attended the captivating show.

A BAND of musicians performs at the cultural show.—Dawn

Renowned Sughars (folk scholars, storytellers and entertainers) amused the audience with their art of storytelling, singing and rendition of poetry, riddles, proverbs and various other genres of fine arts to earn great applaud.

Folk artists mesmerised listeners with soulful tunes of different musical instruments including Alghoza and Chang. Distinguished Sughars who performed at the event included Aajiz Rehmatullah Lashari, Khadim Hussain Manglo, Ali Gul Rind, Ali Akbar Udasi Chandio, Mohammad Jamman Bhatti, Allah Dino Brohi, Qazi Badruddin, Shakeel Ahmed Chandio, Talib Hussain Bhambhro, Halima Chandio, Mehrun-Nisa Manglo, Dilbar Gaincho and Abdul Ghafoor Depar.

Renowned Chang player Wali Mohammad Khaskheli. Alghoza player Saen Dino Brohi, and singers Mansoor Abbasi, Dr Nabi Bakhsh Narejo and Rahat Sikandar Burdi enthralled the audience with their performance.

Prominent among the distinguished guests included Larkano University Vice Chancellor Dr Naik Mohammad Shaikh and Sindh University Registrar Sajid Qayoom Memon.

The proceedings were conducted by Aajiz Rehmatullah Lashari.

Addressing the ceremony, VC Professor Marri said that such cultural events are part of Sindhology's long-standing traditions. "Their purpose is to promote Sindh's centuries-old culture, provide healthy entertainment to people and spread message of love, peace and tolerance through cultural expressions," he said.

He described the performances of Sughars, musicians and vocalists as truly outstanding.

He said the core objective of Sindhology is to collect, preserve and promote Sindh's ancient history, culture and heritage, and disseminate knowledge and literary works.

A display of passion for antique cars

Princess Limousine, a 1965 Ford Mustang, a 1975 Chevrolet Caprice Classic Convertible, a 1984 Cadillac Seville, a 1983 Chevrolet Camaro and a 1991 Cadillac Brougham.

While speaking on the occasion, Qureshy said that, "Interestingly, we don't have any classic car museum in Pakistan so such a show helps create a one-day real life museum display for people to enjoy. If we can somehow get government or private sector support with space, we would love to make Pakistan's first physical car museum in Karachi for people to enjoy it all year round."

He also said that his objective through Pakistan's first online Antique Cars Museum which he founded four years ago was to showcase on a single platform the great historic and globally priceless antique cars that are there in Pakistan for the world to see. "Also I wanted to show our love for these automotive treasures and how our passionate antique car collectors take care of these cars and preserve them despite the huge challenges that they face here," he added.

The President of the Vintage and Classic Rally Drivers Association of Pakistan, Imad Samad, was also there with five of his classic vehicles, including two Willys Jeeps, a grey 1952 and a beige 1961 model. When asked if he drove around in the jeeps in this cold, he said that he very much did as the engine heat from under their dashboards kept his legs warm. The others in his collections displayed there were a 1935 Chevrolet Master Deluxe. "Seeing it on the road people point to it and call out 'Quaid-i-Azam ki gaari [Quaid-i-Azam's car]'," he smiled.

Samad also had a 1968 Jaguar E-Type Series 1.5, a rare transitional model which came out between 1968 and 1969. Another rare car of his there was one of the 1982 silver beige metallic collector's edition of the Chevrolet Corvette. "There was no Corvette the year which followed and the 6,759 units that came out in 1982 all have the same silver beige metallic colour," he explained.

Mohammad Ali's 1970 Oldsmobile Toronado and 1967 Ford Mustang were attracting many admirers as were Hasan Jafar's 1953 and 1978 Chrysler New Yorkers and 1974 Cadillac Eldorado. The cars originally belonged to their fathers and it was great to see how well the next generation has maintained them. Speaking about passing down the love of vintage and classic cars to the next generation, the Founder and President of the Vintage and Classic Car Club of Pakistan, Mohsin Ikram, while sitting behind the wheel in his 1959 Austin Healey, shared that his two-year-old grandson Asad can start the car engine and is turning into quite a car buff.

Meanwhile, the visitors also enjoyed looking at and taking selfies with the other cars there such as Porsche, Mercedes, BMW, Austin Mini, MG, VW, Toyota, Datsun and Suzuki. Aisha Anwar, a visitor, told Dawn that besides the great ambiance, she was happy to meet with so many antique car owners who were so knowledgeable about the overall mechanics and history of the cars. Another visitor, Ayesha Jameel, said she was hoping to find a 1969 Ford Mustang V8 there. The trio of friends Khubaib Azeem, Mohammed Meekal and Mohammed Haseeb could not stop talking about various models of Mercedes and Rolls Royce they encountered at the show. Shahid Ali was there with his three boys, 10-year-old Musa Shahid who was crazy about Ferraris, eight-year-old Essa Shahid who loved BMWs and a year-old Dawood Shahid, who was completely in awe of everything.
